Ms. Debora E. Burch : Gifts from the Garden: Lessons Learned from the Natural World: Lessons Learned from the Natural World before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Gifts from the Garden: Lessons Learned from the Natural World: Lessons Learned from the Natural World:

Gifts from the Garden portrays the garden as spiritual classroom, plants and creatures as teacher, and the gardener as student. The author weaves delightful -- sometimes humorous, sometimes imaginative -- tales about her encounters with the creatures and lives in her garden. Many astonishing lessons can be learned from dirt, bugs, rocks, plants and animals if one will simply listen.

About the Author Debra Burch is a wife, mother of two grown children, caretaker of two dogs, employee, and spiritual seeker. A busy life as a consultant, wife and mother led her to garden as a method to relieve stress. Working in the peace of the natural world opened the door to a realm she did not know existed but that she has written about in Gifts from the Garden: Lessons Learned from the Natural World. Ms. Burch and her husband and two dogs reside in wild and wonderful Southaven, Mississippi.
