Same book same picturesBy melyI purchased "Great Escapes"- Inspirational homes in stunning locations "Great Escapes"- Dream homes in fabulous locations. Both By Judith Miller. Buy the less expensive one. It's the same book with the same pictures.2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Escape into the pages!By A CustomerThis book takes to over twenty residences in a variety of settings. The author has divided them into five categories: rural, waterside, mountain and hillside, woodland and urban escapes. Each residence is shown with several luscious photographs and accompanied by copy describing various aspects of the owners idea of an escape, details of the restoration or building and descriptions of the residence itself. My one complaint was that it seemed a bit uneven with regard to depth of coverage given to each residence. The layout includes larger photos with lots of thumbnail photos, making it a jam-packed feast for the eyes without being busy. The photos are so lovely you can almost fall into the pages in a dream

A lucky few are able to escape the mundane realities of life, retreating to homes in some of the worlds most beautiful places. Great Escapes joins the owners, detailing their experiences, and revealing what makes these places so special.'

About the Author Judith Miller is an established and internationally renowned author of books in the field of interior design and architecture. In addition to being co-founder of the hugely successful Miller's Antiques Price Guide, she was responsible for writing the best-selling Period Details, Period Style, Country Style, and The Style Sourcebook, as well as Wooden Houses. She also contributes to magazines, radio, and television in Europe and the U.S. On top of this already heavy workload, she somehow manages to find time to present four television series on interiors, including the hugely popular BBC Television's "House Detectives". Simon Upton is one of the most sought-after magazine and book photographers in Britain and the U.S. His work takes him across the globe, where he photographs interiors for a number of leading style magazines such as World of Interiors, House and Garden, Elle Decor, and Totler. He has also contributed to several books and was the photographer for Pure Country and Living in London.
