Five StarsBy Gwendolyn GaydenHusband used this book to construct his log cabin. Looks in it almost daily!!!

A step by step "how-to" on the construction of a log cabin profusely illustrated with over 300 photographs plus several line drawings. This book was written and designed for the "average" person who has the desire to build a log cabin but not much knowledge. Modern tools are used and everything but logs (including roof) were purchased and yet the cost of construction was kept right at $3,000. Common problems are shown being solved using not much more than common sense. From trees in the timber to the final chinking, this book is designed to get the reader out there and building.

About the AuthorJohn McPherson has been writing and teaching outdoor skills (mostly primitive living survival) since the early '80's. He is well known as an expert on primitive skills throughout not only the U.S. but also many countries of the world. His book (co-authored with wife Geri) PRIMITIVE WILDERNESS LIVING SURVIVAL SKILLS is one of the worlds' best sellers in this field. Most of his life has been spent in the outdoors and he grew up dreaming of one day building a log cabin from scratch - at age 54 he did it!
