Like the ancient Japanese proverb "Don't judge book by cover" ...By ScottBeing that this is a book about design, location and caring for your pond you'd expect a few photos right? Paul Morgan doesn't think so, it might as well been printed in braille. No photos, no real help, just the authors opinion of what to potentially consider when considering a pond design. Like the ancient Japanese proverb "Don't judge book by cover" heed this warning people. I bought this book to read on the plane to Costa Rica, I placed it inside the copy of the emergency procedures instructions. That is a good place for it, only to be used in last ditch emergencies when you have no other options

Paul goes into detail about designing the shape of your pond and the effect it has on the pond itself. He also discusses how deep it must be, liners, different pond options, pumps, filtration systems, etc. There are even ways to create your pond without digging. I'm pretty cheap and like to keep things simple, and the author delivers by including an option like that in the book. But Mr. Morgan also tells you how to steer clear of cheaper quality methods. Just as important is the thorough explanation of how to properly maintain your new pond. If you're looking to add a pond to your home, I highly recommend grabbing this book!
