Gathering the design principles and tricks of the world's greatest garden makers, this illustrated guide provides expert advice in all aspects of the design process. By examining the way designers work, this book helps the reader decide on a garden layout and style, relate the garden to the landscape, choose materials for surfaces and boundaries, incorporate living spaces and decorative features, and map out planting schemes. With these tricks of the tradefrom experts such as John Brookes, Isabelle Greene, Steve Martino, and Dan Pearsonreaders will be able to create an outdoor space that is aesthetically pleasing and meets their lifestyle needs.

About the Author Noel Kingsbury is a writer who works with the Landscape Department at the University of Sheffield on plant selection research projects. He is also known for his promotion of ecologically-orientated planting schemes.
